Millions Of Dollars In Damage Is Reported In The State

PIKEVILLE, Ky. (UPI) — Flood crests rolled down the valleys of the Kentucky, Cumberland and Tennessee Rivers today, leaving millions of dollars of damage in their debris-strewn wakes and threatening more destruction downstream.

Gov. Bert Combs, a team of federal officials from Washington and a party of 13 congressmen all planned helicopter trips into the stricken areas of eastern Kentucky today to see what aid was needed most and could be given.

The rampaging waters had receded at Harlan and Hazard, the two hardest hit communities in the state so far, but they left behind a depressing job of cleaning up the mud and debris, caring for more than 20,000 homeless in the state and restoring economic life.

Jackson, on the Kentucky, and Prestonsburg and Pointsville on the Big Sandy appeared to be the danger points today.

Here is how the picture looked this morning, town by town:

At Harlan—The Kentucky has receded, and water no longer is in the downtown area. All roads are clear. No fatalities or injuries were reported.

At Hazard—The city is no longer flooded, but Hazard Mayor Willie Dawahare estimated damage would total $2 million in Perry County alone.

At Pikeville—The Big Sandy was dropping, and most of the town was out of water. U.S. Highway 23 was blocked in places south of town.

At Prestonsburg—The downtown business section was evacuated in fear the Big Sandy might rise above a flood gate, with a crest 71.5 feet above flood stage expected this afternoon. About 400 persons were evacuated from homes.

At Paintsville—About 2,000 persons out of their homes with a crest 16.5 feet over flood stage predicted on the Big Sandy tonight.

At Louisa—A crest of 56 feet, 13 above flood stage, predicted Thursday, but no major damage expected as most of the town lies above any possible flooding area.

At Greene—The Ohio River was rising a tenth of a foot an hour to a predicted crest of 56 feet expected at 7 a. m. Thursday.

At Pineville—The Cumberland crested Tuesday night 16 feet above flood stage, but the city is protected by a flood wall. About 200 persons were evacuated from homes in low unprotected areas.

A Barboursville and Williamsburg—The Cumberland crested during the night at 8 to 12 feet above flood stage. Damage was not serious at either place.

Two deaths had been listed in the state so far from the floodwaters. Hogan Billiter, a railroad employee, was killed when a train overturned on a washed out section of track at Shelbyville in Pike County Monday night, and an unidentified Owens County man was reported to have drowned Tuesday.

Helicopters were to be used today to reach the isolated Hindman area in Knott County where about 200 persons were cut off without food, clothing or electricity. A Hindman funeral director, John Everidge, walked an estimated 25 miles Tuesday to get food aid.

There also were unconfirmed reports that a man had been swept away in a truck in Pike County, and that a man had been seen clinging to a rooftop, crying for help in Harlan County and was feared to have drowned.

Every major road in southern Kentucky was blocked by floodwaters Tuesday, but some began to clear today. The problem was heightened by landslide, however.

A photographer who flew over the Hazard and Harlan areas said he saw at least 20 places where earthslides had blocked major highways.

Eastbound lanes of Kentucky's new turnpike, the Mountain Parkway, were under water near Sledge, in Powell County.

Coach Johnny Reagan rates Kershner as one of the top glove men in Murray State baseball history.

A senior from Annapolis, Md., Whittington was named as the all-OVC first baseman last season. He hit a .309 mark and was picked as the top fellow players as the most valuable player on the Racers squad.

Coach Reagan is counting on Whittington to again have a good season and spearhead the Racers' drive to the Ohio Valley Conference championship.

Clay Must Put Fast Fists Where Loud Mouth Has Been

By JACK CUDDY

NEW YORK (UPI) — Cockey Cassius Clay will try tonight to put his fast fists where his loud mouth has been.

Clay, 24, is scheduled to knock out over dangerous Doug Jones in jammies Madison Square Garden.

The Garden's first sellout crowd in 13 years—18,732 spectators—will watch untested young Clay's attempt to fulfill his darling fourth-round prediction. The fight will approximate $105,000.

Twenty-one-year-old Cassius of Louisville, Ky., the world's second-ranked heavyweight, has loudly but successfully pin-pointed in advance the exact round for 12 of his previous 14 knockouts.

And if the "Louisville Lip" can overcome the double jump of schooling for his 13th round—predicted, kayo on March 13, he'll certainly be in line for a September shot at the heavyweight crown.

Jones Never Kayoed
A fourth-round knockout victory for Clay would be a notable achievement, indeed. Because his opponent, New Yorker Jones, never has been kayoed in 25 fights against generally better opposition than Clay faced while Clay clocked off his 17 straight victories as a professional.

"I'm the greatest," said Cassius. "The Kentucky contender, who garnishes his pugilism with poetry, then stated:

"But he's got to go in four."

The betting band from the bluegrass country is buoyantly riding a string of nine straight knockouts. And he is favored at 17-5 to beat 26-year-old Jones, who produced the biggest upset of 1962 on last Dec. 15 when he knocked out third-ranked Zora

Giants And Dodgers Say They're Pleased With Fisher, Skowron, They Acquired Over Winter

By FRED DOWN

United Press International
First impressions can be deceiving but the San Francisco Giants and Los Angeles Dodgers think their relations with Jack Fisher and Bill Skowron are going to be long and profitable.

Fisher and Skowron were involved in major winter deals—the Giants acquiring the pudgy pitcher from the Baltimore Orioles and the Dodgers obtaining the rugged first baseman from the New York Yankees.

Fisher made his competitive debut for the Giants Tuesday with four shutout innings in a 4-1 victory over the Boston Red Sox while Skowron ran his hitting streak to five straight hits in two games in a 4-3 triumph over the St. Louis Cardinals.

Fisher and Billy Pierce shut out the Red Sox with three hits for eight innings before Boston scored a run off rookie Bob Skowron. Joe Amalfitano singled in the fifth and seventh innings and went on to score the Giants' first two runs.

Skowron Starts Rally
Skowron, 5-foot-5 in his last two games, touched off the Dodgers' winning two-run seventh-inning rally with a single. Frank Howard's single, a wild pitch, two walks by Dick Groat completed the rally. Bill White had three hits for the Cardinals.

The Yankees could have used Skowron's bat Tuesday when Frank Pank, Chicago's Raymond and rookie Larry Manie combined to limit them to one hit in the fifth and seventh innings.

from Cuba, although reports in the West had indicated a withdrawal was being made.

Renew War Threat

The Soviet people had been given no prior indication that a troop pullout was even contemplated.

The troops were sent to Cuba before, during and after last October's Cuban crisis between Russia and the United States.

The Pravda statement was couched with a renewed threat of war in the event of any United States aggression against Castro's regime.

The statement quoted a departing Soviet colonel as saying Russian troops in Cuba were determined to fight side-by-side with "their Cuban brothers" to the "last drop of the blood" during the Cuban crisis. It said troops had moved into positions along the Cuban coast in October when war was just around the corner.

Number Not Specified

Pravda did not specify how many troops had been withdrawn or would be withdrawn at this time. It gave no figures on the number of soldiers in Cuba or how many would remain.

The withdrawal was in line with Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev's promise to the United States on Feb. 18 that he would remove "several thousand" Russians from Cuba by the middle of March.

The Kremlin was reported to have had 17,000 military forces in Cuba at one time, including 53,000 organized in combat units.

Khrushchev has claimed they were "instructors" and presented no cause for the United States to worry.

The presence of Russian troops just 90 miles off the Florida coast has caused an outcry in the U. S. Congress and has brought demands that President Kennedy take steps to get them out of Cuba.

Inquiry Into News Industry Is Begun By Congressman

By ARNOLD SAWISLAK
United Press International
WASHINGTON (UPI) — Rep. Emanuel Celler, D-N. Y., today opened an inquiry into the news industry with a pledge to seek ways "to protect, and if need be, expand our free market place for the exchange of news and ideas."

He said new antitrust exemptions for newspapers might be one such step.
Celler, chairman of the House Judiciary Committee and its antitrust subcommittee, called Chairman Newton N. Minow of the Federal Communications Commission as the first witness.
Celler said while he believed "there is simply no substitute for the printed word" to inform and comment on current events, radio and television "form a part of our market place of news and views."

"Where local newspaper monopolies exist, broadcast stations can offer some variety of voices with in a community," he said. "All the more reason, therefore, for the subcommittee to consider the extent and effect of cross-ownership by newspapers of broadcast stations."

He said such ownership "is not necessarily evil," and may be the means of keeping a competitive newspaper alive. But he said it also could act to block ideas "if the single newspaper in a community owns the only broadcast station."
Celler, in his opening statement, emphasized his intention to restrict the investigation to the economics of the industry.
"I have said before and I repeat here and now, we shall shun any form of censorship like the very plague, nor will we in any way undertake to judge the content of any newspaper," he said.

"It is the purpose of these hearings to find ways to protect, and if need be, expand our free market place for the exchange of news and ideas."

trust laws to the preservation of newspaper competition and our free press."
"Where practices have developed which raise questions under the antitrust laws, the subcommittee will consider whether these practices tend to promote or destroy newspaper competition," Celler said.

Where the survival of newspapers appears to require it," he said.
Celler said he wanted to know if concentration was "good," bad or of no consequence, "or inevitable under existing circumstances, and if certain industry practices were unreasonable restraints of trade and whether they should be exempted from the antitrust laws."

A New Thriller OFF THE DEEP BLUE END BY JOHN GREASEY

CHAPTER 28
FIFI LEVLANCH moved toward the cliff. It was a powerful charge of granite under the place. They will be buried; no one will know how it happened.

De Vignolles stopped, and as he followed, the light seemed to hurt them. He moved his right hand, and Rollison put out his own to take the Frenchman's. "Do not take—police," de Vignolles said. "If the police go, they will be—He gulped, opened his mouth again, made that strange, haunting noise. Fifi, close at hand, put a spoon of water to his lips. "Buried alive, in—in the cliff."

He stopped again. "It was a long time before he tried to speak, then the words came as a whisper.

"Do not use force," he said; "do not use force."

He fell silent.

Outside, there were no sounds. Papa Muller's men had caught the Arab in the brown, frightened man with jet-black eyes, nervous movements, and hands which wouldn't keep still. He did not speak English, but his French was as good as a native of France, and he was eager to talk.

He had been told to kill de Vignolles, he said, and had seen him in the car. So he followed him here and carried out his orders.

Why?

He was employed to carry out such orders by men whose names he did not know. He stayed at a small house near the Villa Sebec. He sometimes served on board a ship, the ship sometimes carried white girls to Algiers.

He swore that he knew nothing of the Villa Sebec, the hiding place under the cliff.

"Did anyone else at the Villa Sebec know of this farm?"

"No, I was alone," he said.

"What shall we do with him?" Muller's men asked.

"For the time being, leave him here," said Rollison. He turned to Fifi. "I'm going into Nice. You stay here; I think you'd be safer here."

"What is there that I can do?" Violette asked.

Rollison looked at her, broodingly.

"You can come with me to Nice," he said, and added very quietly, "And I may ask you to give yourself up at the Villa Sebec. That's one way that we might be able to save the others."

"The wages of treachery are pain and fear, my dear," Violette will be told at the Villa Sebec as the story continues here tomorrow.

De Vignolles' eyes closed. His lips moved as if he were trying to drink. Fifi put a spoon of water to his lips.

She hurried off to get one. De Vignolles opened his eyes, waveringly. The light seemed to hurt them. He moved his right hand, and Rollison put out his own to take the Frenchman's. "Do not take—police," de Vignolles said. "If the police go, they will be—He gulped, opened his mouth again, made that strange, haunting noise. Fifi, close at hand, put a spoon of water to his lips.
